Re: AT&T Corp. Petition for Declaratory Ruling Regarding Enhanced
Prepaid Card Services, WC Docket No. 03-133

Dear Ms. Dortch:

As AT&T has explained, the prepaid card market is highly competitive and provides an important social benefit, especially to those consumers who are most in need of a low-cost alternative to a traditional telephone subscription plan. There are many prepaid card providers in the marketplace offering rates that are as low as – or even lower than – AT&T's enhanced prepaid cards that are sold in retail stores. Indeed, some of these providers offer rates as low as 3/4ths of 1¢ per minute. These rates provide low-volume and low-income customers the ability to realize the same low rates as heavy users of telecommunications and serve an important role in meeting the goal of universal service for all consumers. Attached is a sampling of some of the prepaid card rates offered in the marketplace today.

One electronic copy of this Notice is being submitted to the Secretary of the FCC in accordance with Section 1.1206 of the Commission's rules.

Sincerely,
